ARE WE YET CIVILIZED? The Rev. Van Derveen Answers the Perplexing Puzzle,

The Rev. Christian Van Derveen read a paper on, "Are We Yet Civilized?" before the pastor's conference in St. Mark's chapel yesterday afternoon. The meeting was attended by an even dozen members, and the statements contained in the paper and the deduc-tions made and conclusions arrived at by the reader elicited a continued dis-cussion. He reviewed the condition of society and the world in general and endeavored to prove by citations of certain indulgences and practices of individuals and communities, that the world is not yet civilized. The recent burning at the stake of the negro he fountains mingle with the rivers, Smith in Texas was neld up as an evisystem. In a civilized c mmunity, he thought, all these violations of obligations, contempts for yows, outraging of decencies, illicit indulgencies, etc., would be treated as felonies.

A few of the city pastors thought the paper was a little too radical in some instances, but many of the views of certain conditions and the ideas ex-pressed were nightly commended. It was the general opinion, however, that all mankind should not be censured for the wicked indulgencies of certain ommunities, and that the coudition of the world should not be judged by the Laty Mergan sets of individuals.

Will Reject It. The Street Railway company communicated with the council in regard to the report of the committee on streets and ordinances made one week ago. The company informed the council that so far as the proposed ordinance would require the removal of any of its Canal street tracks it was out of the power of the company to construct during 1893 any other lines than those originally asked for, on Madison avenue, Ottawa street, East Leonard street and College avenue. The company was willing to extend its lines as fast as they were needed. The mileage of the company's lines kept pace with the growth of the city, but there was so immediate need of the lines mentioned in the report of the committee. For those reasons the company fait obliged to decline to accept the proposed ordinance so as to save the expense of printing the ordinance. The communication was referred to the committee on ordinances.

The master plumbers asked to have a plumber appointed to inspect the plumbing work performed in the city. Referred to the mayor.
